charl landvreugd

Charl studies fine art and contemporary critical studies at Goldsmiths University in London. He explores the process in which different concepts merge into a new form with a hybrid identity. The outcome of this process is unknown in advance. His work is about the tension which comes into being between the competing concepts when fighting for the upper hand. The images in this gallery are taken from the series "xenophobia". To see more of his work please visit www.charll.com
